

University of Toronto Faculty of Information

The Faculty of Information is a thriving and renowned research-focused department based in the Claude T. Bissell Building within Robarts Library on the University of Toronto's St. George campus. In response to increased enrolment and outdated facilities, superkül was commissioned to undertake a feasibility study to address the growing requirement for research, teaching and collaborative space.

Working closely with the Faculty and a team of consultants, superkül is currently investigating ways to enhance connectivity, increase natural light, optimize underutilized spaces, improve overall building systems performance, and introduce flexible working environments that can adapt to future demands—with the goal of establishing a dynamic and lively place that fuels possibilities for social and intellectual exchange for years to come.
